A layman-level survey of the basic Biblical doctrines of the Christian faith, grounded in the core beliefs expressed in the Nicene Creed and the early Ecumenical Councils. This book presents the doctrines affirmed across all branches of historic “orthodox” Christianity — Eastern Orthodox, Roman Catholic, and the various Protestant traditions. Non-denominational and non-sectarian in orientation, it offers a clear and accessible overview of the essential teachings shared by the Christian family worldwide.

Eusebius of Caesarea, the fourth-century bishop and historian, appears throughout this book as your AI-generated guide. His presence is modeled on the real historical figure who witnessed the early development of Christian doctrine, preserved the stories of the apostles and martyrs, and recorded the events surrounding the Council of Nicaea. In this edition, Eusebius serves as a teaching companion, offering short sidebar commentaries that help readers understand how the doctrines of the Christian faith were shaped in the early centuries of the Church. His voice provides historical context, clarifies theological terms, and connects each doctrine to the witness of the early believers.
